THE VITICULTURAL INDUSTRY.

A census bulletin on viticulture, just received, is an interesting one, especially to Californians. For the first time the Census Office has made a special investigation for the purpose of ascertaining the extent and value of the grape, raisin and wine industry of the United States, an industry which, according to the report, represents a total value in land, improvements, machinery and appurtenances, of $155,601,150, and furnishes employment to 200,780 persons.

Some interesting information is given in this bulletin regarding the early beginnings of the viticultural industry in this country. For more than one hundred years efforts were made to grow the European varieties of grapes in the open air, always, however, resulting in failure, except in California. Pomologists then turned their attention to the improvement of native vines, and the result is the development of many choice and valuable varieties. It is only since these improved varieties of native grapes have been planted and cultivated that the industry has become profitable and has grown to its great proportions in various parts of the country east of the Rocky Mountains, while in California the foreign varieties have found a most congenial home and are grown to perfection.

In New York State, in what is known as the Lake Keuka district, a grower of grapes shipped his first crop, amounting to fifty pounds, to the New York market about 1845 by way of the New York and Erie Canal. The grapes were delivered in good condition, and the commission houses handling them wrote encouragingly to the shipper, advising further shipments. The next year the grower was able to ship some 200 or 300 pounds. He overdid the matter, however, and the New York market on grapes broke under the pressure. It is estimated that during this last season (1890) there have been shipped from this same district and carried by the different railroad and express companies to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and other distributing markets, about 20,000 tons or 40,000,000 pounds of grapes; and probably one-quarter of this amount was, in addition, sold to wine manufacturers.

The Hudson River district, in the same State, is estimated to have shipped to the New York and other markets during the same time between 15,000 and 15,000 tons or 28,000,000 pounds of grapes, while the Chautauque district of New York, where the industry has been growing and prospering only through the past decade, furnished as its 1890 crop for the different markets of the country probably about 1200 car loads, or 30,000,000 pounds of table grapes, making a grand total of 98,000,000 pounds as the product of what is known as the New York State district. This does not include the large amount of grapes used in the district for wine, the figures and reports upon which are found elsewhere in the bulletin.

As showing the proportions to which the industry has grown in the United States, it may be mentioned that the product of California for the season of 1889 was 14,626,000 gallons of wine and 1,372,193 boxes of raisins, a product which will be largely exceeded during the coming season.

In regard to Los Angeles county, the bulletin contains the following:

Los Angeles county has 18,120 acres of bearing vines. A new and mysterious disease attacked the vines of the southern portion of this district about 1885, and ruined more than one-half of the acreage. Every effort has been made to discover the cause and remedy the evil. The most expert scientists have been consulted by the State Board of Viticulture in California, and the Department of Agriculture appointed an expert to investigate and report upon the matter. There were produced in 1889 in Los Angeles county 25,820 tons, or 51,640,000 pounds, of grapes for wine, and 1000 tons, or 2,000,000 pounds of grapes for table purposes. The vines in this county are justly celebrated, and were the first shipped from California to the eastern markets. This county excels in its berries, pears and brandies. There were 20,000 boxes of raisins packed in 1889, the new disease having reduced the product about one-half. The product of Orange county lately formed from portions of Los Angeles county, is included in the above figures.

In its reference to the "mysterious vine disease," this bulletin is rather behind the times. The disease is now, fortunately, almost a matter of history in this section, and the wine industry is looking up again, with excellent prospects for the future. That it does not increase with more rapid strides in Southern California is mainly attributable to the fact that other branches of horticulture offer greater prizes in this section.

A TULARE county paper tells how a man in that county picked 6000 lemons from six trees, and calculates that at 35 cents a dozen this would give $8000 per acre. Such figuring as this is misleading. Growers do not realize 35 cents a dozen for lemons.

THE United States will soon have a navy. Nineteen vessels are now building.

IRRIGATION AND SETTLEMENT.

Here are some spirited and truthful remarks from that wide-awake paper, the Stockton Mail:

That is wonderful enterprise that the people of Los Angeles display in resolving to move their splendid citrus exhibit bodily to Chicago. It will be a great advertisement for the southern citrus belt. But that is the way the southern citrus belt built itself up. We might stop. We cannot hope to attract immigrants until we have something attractive to show them, and we cannot possess this until we have irrigation. If everybody in Chicago passed through San Joaquin county not a hundred would settle here unless capitalists offered them inducements to become small holders of land suitable for diversified farming and orcharding by developing irrigation enterprises. These are the cold facts, gentlemen, try to disguise them as you may.

The sooner the northern sections of the State recognize the truth of these statements, the sooner will they begin to attract eastern immigration and grow in earnest. Large, forbidding grain ranches, and gloomy, tumble-down buildings repel settlers, while small, fertile homes, embowered in green, attract them. Throughout a large portion of the State—almost the entire portion, away from the coast—it is only by means of irrigation that such homes can be created.

Let our brethren of Northern California cease carping at us of the south and copy our example. They may then soon be able to point to a number of beautiful settlements patterned after the attractive colony towns of this section.

OLD-FASHIONED stage-coaching is constantly growing in favor in England and the length of the routes is being extended. A coach service between London and York is planned for the summer. The journey would take two days, divided into twelve hours' drive apiece, with a night's rest at Leicester. As the distance is 191 miles, fully a hundred horses would be required to work the twenty stages along the great North road. A few such stage routes through picturesque sections of Southern California would probably become popular in winter and spring, when there are many tourists here, who would thus be able to obtain a better view of the country than they can from a rapidly-moving train. To make such trips pleasant, however, there would have to be a marked improvement in our roads.

The latest project evolved by the fertile brains of the Chicago World's Fair boomers is to have the fair opened by the only living descendant of Columbus, the Duke of Veragua, of Madrid. This, with the exhibition of Columbus's remains and the house in which he was born, will do very well as a starter. The plans outlined for the great show are already so vast, manifold and bewildering, that it looks as if it would take an able-bodied man the entire time during which the fair is open, working ten hours a day, to gain even a superficial idea of the monster aggregation; and even then he would want to hire help before he was half through.

It is generally taken for granted that the richest silver mines on the western continent are in the Rocky Mountain region and in the southern extension of that range. This, however, is rendered doubtful by the fact that an English syndicate has just paid $10,000,000 for three silver mines near Port Arthur, Ontario, one of which is stated by an English examining engineer to show over $2,000,000 of ore in sight. But then experts sometimes make mistakes.

The United States will be again honored with the presence of Mrs. Langtry this fall. They have to come over here every once in a while to gather in a few more of Uncle Sam's dollars, which he is so fond of casting at their feet. The United States is justly regarded by the show people of the world—good, bad and indifferent—as a cow which never goes dry.

FURTHER details of the treatment of the unfortunate Hungarian laborers in West Virginia show that it was even more cruel than was at first supposed. As in slavery days, these men are held in a state of bondage and are hunted down with dogs. Such a state of affairs calls for immediate and full investigation and remedy. It is a disgrace to the Nation.

SOMETHING approaching an old-time revival in mining stocks has been noted in San Francisco during the past week, but it is probably only a scheme to catch suckers. Pine street is not likely ever to see a return of the days of '73. It is better that it should not.

NOTING the fact that the Southern California Insane Asylum requires an appropriation of $371,500 from the Legislature, the Oakland Enquirer thinks it is "just a little bigger show than the Chicago fair."

APPEALS for help still come from the arid region of South Dakota, Kansas and Nebraska, where the suffering and privation are said to be terrible. A meeting of editors of agricultural papers was held in Chicago a few days ago to listen to Mr. Blackfar of Nebraska and A. A. Pain of Dakota, delegates to solicit help for their unfortunate people.

AN orange-grower of Alhambra gives us as his opinion that the best market for California oranges will be found, not in the East, where they come largely into competition with Florida and European fruit, but in the North and Northwest, where we have little or no competition. There is considerable force in this argument.

If it is true, as reported, that the first pig of tin run from the Temescal mines, last Thursday, will be sent to William McKinley, he will have a seventy-pound token of appreciation of his tariff law. He will also have a new idea of California industries.

The Treasury Department is considering a proposition to reduce the annual catch of fur seals in Bering Sea, as fixed by the existing lease, in order to guard against the possible extinction of the species.

THE question of the proper taxation of mortgages is arousing some attention in the State. The under-valuation of mortgages adds largely to the burdens of the small taxpayer.

STANLEY was particularly pleased with Los Angeles. As a world-wide traveler, his opinion carries more than usual weight.

Letter from J. Pluvius, Esq.,

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES:] While taking a walk on the levee a few days ago I chanced to meet old Jupiter Pluvius, and after the usual salutations he said that he was glad to meet me, as he had something of great importance to communicate to the City Council, the railroad officials and all persons invested with legal rights along the Los Angeles river, and he wished me to write this letter for him. He went on to state that he wanted it distinctly understood by the public, particularly as the City Council is now deliberating on the matter, that he would like to have them know that he was the boss down there and would stand no nonsense about levee building or his right of way, as he had made the river for his own accommodation, and was in the habit from time immemorial of using the levee and the land from hill to hill through which it passes as best suits his convenience when sending down the raging waters to their resting-place in the deep blue sea. "Many years ago," he said, "Irens and patches of willows had grown up along the river, and on its banks, which at times obstructed the waterway, and caused new channels to be formed, but when his mighty force was turned against them they were torn out root and branch, and swept away like leaves before a cyclone. But what seemed to him," he said, "the most ridiculous thing of all, was that the levee above the river had gone to work of late and have drawn arbitrary and ambiguous lines over his right of way, and then called the narrow zig-zag channel they have allowed for his use the official bed of the river, which is too narrow and crooked for a heavy load to pass through without causing great destruction of property and very possibly loss of life. And without consulting him as to whether their plans were satisfactory or not, they had the temerity to even suppose that by throwing up a sand ridge behind a plank nailed to piles set in a bed of quicksand, with a chain of iron links and a large ballast, that they could control within this narrow, crooked space the volume of water on a trend of twenty-five feet fall to the mile, which circumstances often necessitated him to send down. Why," said he, "let any one of common sense take a view of the situation at the mouth of the river, and they will think for a moment what dreadful consequences would occur were the mountains heavily packed with snow as they often have been, and it melting and coming down with continuous days and nights of warm, heavy rains, and the channel of the river in the shape that it is now placed at that point. He had often been compelled," he said, "to spread the water over almost the entire bottom from hill to bill on such occasions, in order to make room for the rapidly swelling flood. No dwellings were there then," he said, "and no midnight horrors were caused by the screams of drowning women and children. But unless the river was straightened," he said, "and was given a much wider channel, with heavy stone embankments high enough to prevent an overflow, something like the Johnstown catastrophe would certainly be the result of the year had engineering which has placed it in its present perilous condition. And again," he stated, "that it was his opinion that the Council had taken a long step in a wrong direction by allowing the railroad company to cut off twenty-five to thirty feet of the Macy-street bridge, which is a clear reduction of the waterway in time of flood, to that extent, and that too, at the most critical point on the river, as the whole force of the stream setting off from the point above on the west side, would strike directly under the east end of the bridge, and for 200 feet above it, and then after being reacted by striking the bluff, would pass off at almost a right angle, striking the west side again a little above the Aliso bridge, and the removal of any part of the ledge below the bridge would be of no benefit to the waterway whatever. But as it is only a matter of dollars and cents to the company the cutting of the bridge, and the stone wall they propose to build, although destroying a part of the waterway, will cost nothing but the materials and work to do it, whereas condemning a strip of ground scarcely fit for anything else, and paying a colossal price for it, would of course cost more. However, the bridge ought not to be disturbed. In conclusion," he said, "unless the nonsense of piling, planking and sand-bagging the river was stopped at once, and strong stone embankments, wide and high, were made, he might have to teach these parties the lesson that it is a fearful thing to provoke the gods," said he.

"With a magic all my own I can undo your planking creep, I can sweep away the wood, I can tear out your piles deep, I can sweep away the wood, I can tear out your piles deep, I can sweep away the wood, I can tear out your piles deep."

JUPITER PLUVIUS.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

Notes and Comments Ancient the Senatorship.

ESTEE AND FELTON FRATERNIZE.

A Tempter Rebuked—Commendatory Notices of the New Senator from Various Sources—A Word for De Young.

[Sacramento Cor. Oakland Tribune.]

After it was all over there was plenty of wine in Felton's rooms and handshakes all around. Estee came in. "Gentlemen," said Felton, lifting his glass, "I give you the health of M. M. Estee!" At this there was a great shout. Estee replied: "I thank you, Mr. Felton, and you, gentlemen. I'm a follower now, and I give you the health of the victor. He is the party leader. There can't be two. I'm glad to be a follower of such a man. I'm sure he will do what is best for California, and be a credit to us all."

To this Felton replied: "I thank you more than I can say. I will do the best I can for California. If I fail it will be because of inability and not lack of attention. From my acquaintance with the public man of the Nation, and from my knowledge of the needs of the State, gained by a long residence here as boy and man, I hope to be able to do California some service at the Nation's Capital. I also hope to reflect some honor upon myself and you who have been so kind to me."

There was a clink of glasses and all the bitterness of the fight was washed down in a gulp of wine.

FELTON AND THE TEMPTER.

[Oakland Enquirer.]

During the Senatorial campaign Mr. Felton was approached by a friend, a prominent citizen, who advised him to untie his purse strings and buy the Senatorship, if for no other reason to keep some worse man from being the same thing. For reply, Felton looked at his friend calmly and said: "If you were in my place, would you really do that?" The author of such poor advice recognized the force of this kindly reproach, and asking pardon, said, "Let us say no more about it."

A TRUE AMERICAN.

[San Francisco Post.]

The Post presents its congratulations to Mr. Felton. He is a self-made man, of splendid courage, of unspotted integrity, of great sagacity in public and private affairs. He is a type of the best and truest American character. And he will be an honor to the State in the United States Senate.

DE YOUNG AS A CANDIDATE.

[San Francisco Post.]

Mr. M. H. de Young appeared for the first time as a candidate for the United States Senate. He departed himself in a manner that gave the public a new view of the man. He stands better now than he ever did before. His retirement in favor of Felton showed that in politics he has as much sagacity as he has in business. It is not too much to say that Mr. de Young has made himself more popular than he ever was before, and he will be a very strong Senatorial candidate in the future.

WILL MAKE A DISTINGUISHED RECORD.

[Oakland Tribune.]

The choice of Charles N. Felton to represent the State in the Senate will be most acceptable, as well to the Republican party as to the people of the State. He is a man of brains and cultivation, a ready and effective speaker, a man of considerable fortune made in local enterprises, and he is a thoroughly representative Californian. He has served with credit in the Legislature of the State and in Congress, and he will undoubtedly make a distinguished record in the upper house of that body.

A GOOD CHOICE.

[San Bernardino Kaleidoscope.]

Hon. C. N. Felton was elected United States Senator on Thursday by a vote of 73, Estee receiving only 15. Mr. Felton's candidacy has been an honorable and honest one, and the State will be well represented in the Senate.

A MAN OF DEEDS.

[San Francisco Record.]

He is a man of many deeds and few words. He is patient, persistent and particular. He fights earnestly and intelligently, but never resorts to a foul. He is one of the great builders who are entitled to the greatest honors in the gift of the State. He has succeeded on his own merits, and that sort of success is one of the first requisites of a United States Senator from a Western State. The man who has been conscientiously and legitimately successful in private life is certainly preferable as a Senator to the man whose life has been a series of failures.

Estee's Dirty Work.

[Sacramento Cor. Stockton Mail.]

The underhanded work of Estee and Leake was so plain, so palpable, so childish that he who runs could read. It created a reaction and a storm of indignation against the perpetrators. The game had really narrowed down to Felton and Estee, and it stood six and six with Estee's deal, but he gave his opponent one when he had the ace, deuce, jack and ten in his own hand.

Estee was making a sympathy fight, and there was a strong disposition to let him have the unexpired term on that ground. He was displaying his sore toe and his friends were holding him up as a political pauper, and pleading that he be retired to the political alms-house for the unexpired term which exists by the accident of death. Not content and unwilling to be duly and properly committed to the refuge, he must needs try to prematurely crawl in under the fence over a trail of nastiness.

Speaking only for my own ego, I have to confess that I respect Mr. M. Estee. I haven't it now. With all the dirt of politics there is a streak of cleanliness running through it sometimes, but Estee has washed to his arm-pits through the worst slough of political ordure that has ever existed in California.

The verdict on all sides, irrespective of party, is "Served him right," and the popular expression is that he should go and order his political coffin.

That Gambling Bill.

[Sacramento Cor. Stockton Mail.]

There is a somewhat general belief that the Assembly bill passed by the Senate today, repealing Section 337 of the Penal Code, throws open the door to the licensing of gambling by municipalities. Such is not the fact. The section in question makes it a felony for any public body or officer to issue a license for the carrying on of gambling games. By its repeal no power to license gambling is conferred. While only intended to affect Sacramento, the bill is not special in its character, but comes under the head of general legislation. Should a city council take it upon itself to license a faro game, or any other kind of a banking game, such license by no means legalizes gambling, as under the State law the dealing or carrying on of games of chance constitutes a misdemeanor. The real and only effect of the repeal is to save municipal officers from prosecution for felony if they take it upon themselves to issue local permission to carry on games. The Sacramento argument is that people will gamble anyhow, and that it is better that the city should derive revenue from the vice direct by license than that the "bankers" should corrupt innocent policemen.

FROM HAWAII.

THE NEW TREATY WITH THE UNITED STATES RECEIVED.

Strong Opposition to its Ratification—English Influence Potent with the New Ruler of the Island.

[By Telegraph to The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—[By the Associated Press.] The Examiner's special correspondence from Honolulu, dated March 12, says: The new commercial treaty between the United States and the Hawaiian Islands has been received from Washington and has been submitted to a secret conference of the Queen and her cabinet. The new treaty calls for the cancellation of the present existing treaty between the two governments, and the substitution of the new document, which permits of full and free interchange of all products, both natural and manufactured, of the two countries. This treaty is said to be the same which was submitted to King Kalakaua shortly before his death in San Francisco. The King objected to the treaty because Hawaiian sugar was not put on equal terms with American sugar; namely, to receive a bounty.

It is not known what action on the treaty will be taken by the Hawaiian government, but it is stated that the influence of English friends of the Queen, as well as the influence of resident British diplomats, will prevent her from accepting the new treaty in its present form.

It is almost conceded that Her Majesty will turn to Canada and Australia for an arrangement similar to the commercial treaty heretofore existing between Hawaii and the United States. Owing to the appointment of Charles B. Wilson as marshal of the kingdom two members of the cabinet will resign. Wilson is said to be an illiterate workman, but is on friendly relations with the Queen.

TYLER'S CHARGES.

The Grand Trunk's Connection With Dominion Politics.

[By the Associated Press.]

MONTREAL, March 22.—[By the Associated Press.] Sargent, general manager of the Grand Trunk road, was today seen in reference to an Ottawa dispatch published in the Toronto Dispatch on March 20 upon the subject of an alleged demand by the Grand Trunk for $2,000,000 prior to the late elections. Sargent remarked that Sir Charles Tupper was under a misapprehension as to the facts of the case. Sir Charles said:

The proof of my statement is to be found in a memorandum which was prepared by Hector Cameron, who was present at the interview for the information of Sir John Macdonald. Before sending it to the Premier Cameron submitted it to Sargent for his approval.

Here then is proof positive of the falsity of Sir Henry Tyler's statement that a promise of a subsidy was given if the Grand Trunk would only support the government. Sargent had not seen the text of Sir Henry Tyler's statement, but as regards the allegations that Cameron submitted a memorandum of what occurred at the interview in question for his approval, no such statement was submitted. The interview took place February 25, and a copy of the memorandum was read to Sergeant March 14, and the former knew nothing of its contents before that date. Sir Charles Tupper further says:

In my interview with Sargent, general manager of the Grand Trunk, so far from promising a subsidy I positively refused to promise anything, and was actually resisted by the pressure of our opponents for railway subsidies, and refused the request of the Grand Trunk for $2,000,000 for their Edmonton and Salisbury extension.

Sargent declared that the Grand Trunk did not ask for a promise of any grant, and therefore could not have been refused. The company made no request for $2,000,000, or for any sum.

Sargent added that he had preserved full notes of what took place at the conference of February 25, but thought it only necessary to correct inaccuracies.

Music at the World's Fair.

[Chicago, March 22.—Theodore Thomas, who arrives in Chicago tomorrow, will probably be asked to accept the position of musical director of the World's Fair. This has been recommended by the joint committee on ceremonies, and the recommendation is regarded with favor by the exposition directors. Prof. William L. Tompkins will be the choral director.

A Chance for Pugilists.

[MINNEAPOLIS, March 22.—Charles Kemmig's backers have deposited a $500 forfeit with the Twin City Athletic Club for Kemmig to fight Ryan at 140, or Kerrigan at 135, give or take two pounds. These two men are preferred, but all other 140 and 135-pound men are embraced in the challenge.

"Sandy" Olds Convicted of Manslaughter on His Fourth Trial for the Murder of Emil Weber.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—[By the Associated Press.] A crowd of 10,000 persons congregated at the Haight-street grounds this afternoon to witness the opening game of the season between the San José and San Francisco teams. The diamond was hard and in good condition, although the outfield was a trifle soft. The banner of the San Francisco club floated proudly at the southerly side of the field, announcing them as the winners of the 1890 pennant. The San Francisco were first at the bat, and presented Lyons as pitcher and Sweet as catcher. The San José put up Harper as pitcher and Speer as catcher.

It was a pitchers' game. The team work of both clubs was strong throughout, and sometimes brilliant, but the splendid work of Lyons and Sweet shut out the visitors completely. San Francisco winning by a score of 5 to 0.

SACRAMENTO, March 22.—Over 5000 people attended the opening ball game of the season today, at Snow Flakes Park, between the Oakland and Sacramento. A band escorted the clubs to the field and the season was inaugurated with the usual pomp. Up to the eighth inning the Sacramento had it all their own way, but the Oakland then made three runs. This won them the game by a score of 4 to 3.

PASADENA.

Office: No. 261-2 E. Colorado Street.

ANTE UP.

Pertinent Points Concerning the Chicago Carnival.

WHO GIVES AND WHO DON'T.

Money Needed at Once—Picnic at Eaton's Canyon—Brevities on Many Topics—Personal Pointers.

If that $500 isn't raised for a Pasadena exhibit at the Chicago orange carnival this community will everlastingly regret it. Think of it—Redlands, San Diego, Pomona, Ontario and the rest all there and not a sign of Pasadena. That there is a possibility of the requisite amount not being raised is evidenced from the subscription papers, which so far have not been overburdened with signatures. It is interesting in this connection to note who the donors are. The three local banks have contributed liberally. The individuals who have subscribed are for the most part the very men who although of moderate means, invariably contribute to every undertaking that has for its object the advancement of the town's interests. It is an unpleasant fact to chronicle that the wealthiest of our citizens—any one of whom could easily donate the sum asked for and never feel it—have, almost without exception, not contributed a dollar to the fund. On the other hand, the subscription papers chronicle several $25 donations, which sum represents more to the donors than would $500 to their wealthier neighbors. There is a good deal of talk just now about the progress we are making, all of which is proper, for it is seen cropping out in every direction. It will hardly do to offset this by failure to provide us representation at the coming carnival. It wouldn't sound well if Redlands and Pomona, Duarte and the rest tell the Chicago visitors that Pasadena, with her 5000 inhabitants, her manifold attractions and her wealth, and variety of her productions, couldn't raise $500 to buy oranges for the exhibit. If we are not represented at the carnival Chicagoans won't care a penny for our reputation as a fruit-growing center, and the town will go to the demotion box—wows as far as buying oranges from us goes. If we are represented, our widely-advertised natural attractions will serve us well, for it will be to our exhibit that the visitors will first flock to see if we can grow fruit as well as enjoy sunlight and inhale the odors of flowers. It goes without saying that our fruit will compare favorably with any at the carnival, and it does not require any special effort to calculate something of the value of the exhibit to Pasadena in the way of advertising her productive land and orchards. The money is needed at once. No thinking citizen possessed of one grain of public spirit will hold back. If the committee fails to call on you today hand in your contributions at the Pasadena National Bank. Pasadena must be on deck when the show opens.

IN EATON'S CANYON.

A Party of Plonkers Have a Good Time.

On invitation of Harry B. Green a jolly party from Hotel Green drove to Eaton's Canyon Saturday morning and spent the day very pleasantly. Under the expert whip of George Greeley, a fine six-in-hand, driven at a lively clip, safely made all of the difficult points and short turns, of which there are so many near the mouth of the canyon. Going and returning the lively notes of the banjo added to the merriment of the plonkers. It is somewhat slangy, but they do say that "as an entertainer Harry Green is a chip off the old block."

The view in the canyon is limited to a few hundred feet at most from any point excepting toward the zenith; walls of crumpling granite and sandstone several hundred feet high and nearly perpendicular, hem in and confine the mountain stream that goes gushing and rushing over and around trees, logs and large boulders with unceasing though musical din. Ferns and vines grow upon the steep sides which are quite inaccessible. The journey from the mouth of the canyon to the beautiful waterfall, though not more than a mile and a half in length, is longer if made by the time necessary to accomplish it. Fully one-third of the distance is over the boulders that form the bed of the stream. It is tiresome, and the party so found it, to pick one's way along, and at the same time avoid immersion.

Mr. Green took several photographs of the party at different points on the way to the falls. Returning home, Master Ross Bowler (4 years old) betrayed his poetic nature by a remark upon the fiery glow of the poppies that mantle the mesas. He called the picture "My little sunset." They do represent the radiance of a glowing sunset to a degree, but Ross was first to invent the metaphor.

Those in the party were: Mrs. Col. Bowler, Master Ross Bowler, the Misses Bird, the Dalles, Oregon; Willa Moises, San Francisco; B. Kimball, Salt Lake; Rebekah, Annie and Jessie Pocock, St. Louis; and Lotta Green of Altadena, Messrs. Harry B. Green, Walter Bowler, F. L. Bortels, Charles Bowler, J. G. Rossett, Pasadena; and C. L. Andrews, H. G. Andrews, and W. E. Andrews of London, England.

Quarterly Report of the Public Librarian.

Following is a synopsis of Librarian Merrill's report for the months of December, January and February, as submitted to the City Council on Saturday: In December the library was open twenty-five days, and the reading room thirty days; number of books issued, 930; number of subscriptions, 104; total expenses, $40.80; total receipts, $28.95, leaving a deficit of $11.85. During January the library was open twenty-five days; reading room thirty days; number of books issued, 1108; number of subscriptions, 154; total expenses, $42.25; total receipts, $42.55, leaving a surplus of 30 cents. During February the library was open twenty-three days, reading room twenty-eight days; number of books issued, 1300; number of subscriptions, 196; total expenses, $40.80; total receipts, $52.80, leaving a surplus of $12. In January 530 volumes were added, and in February 260, making a total of 5500 books in stock. The figures show a surplus of 45 cents for the quarter.

BREVITIES.

FROM WISCONSIN.

Sighing for the Sunny Slopes of California.

APPLETON (Wis.) March 12.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] I wonder if you have ever known the exquisite satisfaction of sitting by a glowing bed of anthracite, with your feet upon the fender, while the mercury—even in the sunshine of your front piazza—was struggling up from somewhere below zero, as is the case on this morn of March, 1891.

I suppose every climate has its drawbacks and its compensations. How much good housing and light and warmth are to us no one can understand who has always lived under the kinder conditions of your sunny atmosphere. Our Wisconsin winter has been an unusually mild and pleasant one, and yet we have no roses or calla lilies blossoming in our borders, no oranges ripening in our back yards, and we walk about our demesne through paths of snow and a high white wall on either side.

If a calla lily blossoms in a sunny window, it is an event second only to the birth of a babe into one's family, and the neighbors come in to admire and to congratulate. Think of this, and then of the rows upon rows of lilies now blooming in the humblest Los Angeles backyards of the roses and heliotropes climbing upward to breathe their sweetness into the loftiest Los Angeles chamber. Think of our outward chill and desolation and of your outdoor comfort and beauty and fragrance, and be content. O ye dwellers in the land of our desire!

My husband and I, having spent some months in Los Angeles and vicinity, are spoiled for this northern climate, and every winter since our return has grown more and more "the winter of our discontent."

Many Wisconsin people are going to Southern California to reside permanently, and many more are spending their winters there. William Whorton, who with his wife is in Los Angeles at present, has a $20,000 home just across the street from us, which, I dare say, he would like to convert into Southern California property. Here is a chance for malcontents, if you have any, and there are more of us who would like to exchange good and substantial homes in Wisconsin for Los Angeles climate, with a bit of real estate thrown in!

The LOS ANGELES TIMES comes to us daily from our sons at Station D, Adams, San Francisco, and we read with interest and pleasure the news of the grape and olive. We keep the run of California politics, and my husband thinks he would be willing to trade Wisconsin Democracy for California Republicanism. We hope, moreover, that the court or the commonwealth will deal justly by the most gentle gentleman, Don Pio Pico.

Redondo.

REDONDO, March 21.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Improvement still goes on around the Redondo Hotel, and very soon the grounds will be as beautiful as shrubs and flowers can make them. The addition to the bath-house has been completed, and a broad board walk which extends some distance up the beach.

A number of San Francisco people arrived at the Redondo Hotel yesterday, among them A. Gerberding and Griffith Coit.

A sacred concert will be given at the Redondo Sunday evening.

Today's arrivals at the Redondo are: Mr. and Mrs. William Jock, Miss Mary Greer, Mrs. M. M. Clark, E. H. Clark, Peoria, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Phelps, Springfield, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brown, Kansas City, Mo.; and Mrs. W. C. Marten, Palmyra, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. M. Schmidt, Miss Edith Schmitt, San Francisco; Mrs. George K. Crockett, S. E. Johnson, Massachusetts; W. R. Abercrombie, U. S. Army; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Atwood, Connecticut; Mr. S. A. De Long, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. A. Metcalf, Pasadena; Mrs. J. P. Garvey, Miss E. Garvey, Miss E. M. Farr, J. C. Jewett, L. F. Simmons, Raymond Hotel; Mr. and Mrs. James J. Ayres, Mrs. E. Slater, H. C. Austin, Will Pariss, Los Angeles.

A Thousand Fowls.

Fancier's Monthly.

First. How many acres would it take to accommodate 1000 fowls and raise all their feed?

Second. How much would it cost to feed 120 chickens properly from the shell to 4 months old?

Third. How many eggs will a Brown Leghorn hen lay on an average during the year?

A SUBSCRIBER.

One thousand fowls may be kept in the condition on one acre of ground. If you do not go to western Massachusetts, and see them. There are two systems of keeping poultry, on a large scale. One admits of managing thousands on a comparatively small plot of ground, with an elaborate arrangement of yards and pens. Another is known as the colonizing plan, putting small flocks by themselves and requiring a good-sized farm for each colony having a range of its own. Both methods are, if skillfully managed, successful, but the latter is more favorable to a beginner. As to raising feed, one acre of some land will produce as much as ten of another kind. You can reckon the cost of food at $1 per head per year, without getting far out of the way.

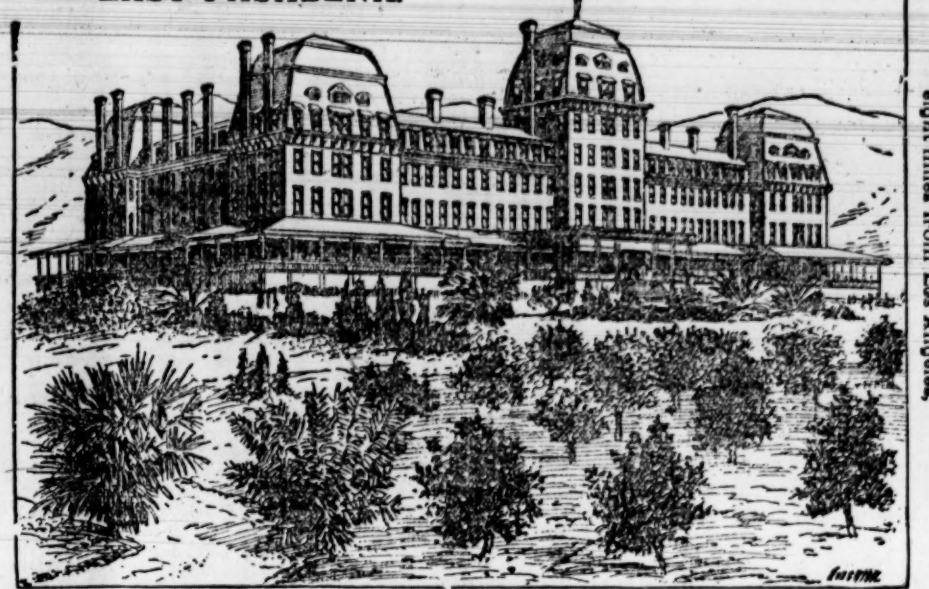

Second, from 20 to 25 cents each. Generally speaking it costs to feed a chick or fowl 2 cents per week, but of course not at that rate for small chickens. The cost of bringing up a chick from the shell to broiler size is about 16 cents.

Third, 150 is a good average—single birds have been known to produce 250, but that is far above the average.

This season's production in silver, whether for table or personal use, emphasizes the present tendency to brighten with rich chased decorations, the latter being frequently applied in the form of a border round a bright center.

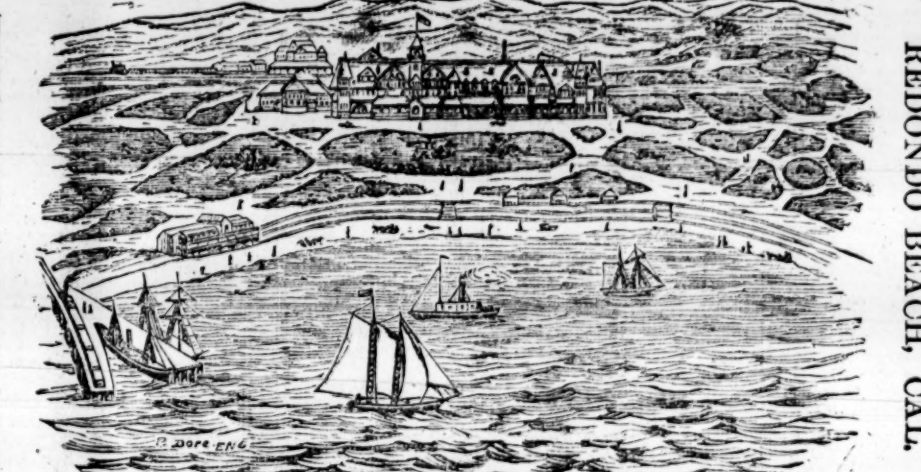

The Tourist's Hotel.

THE RAYMOND, EAST PASADENA.

Under management of Mr. C. H. Merrill of the Crawford House, White Mountains, N. H., who has been manager of the hotel for four seasons. Many improvements have been made, and the hotel is now complete. Excellent railroad facilities between Los Angeles and the Raymond bring it within easy reach. Persons doing business in Los Angeles can readily reside at the hotel. A fully equipped livery, a good starting point for a drive through the San Gabriel Valley, in which are the San Gabriel Mission Church, Rose's and Shor's warrens, Lucky Baldwin's elegant grounds and stock farm, the Sierra Madre Villa, and other places of interest. Special entertainments frequently. Full particulars regarding terms of board, etc., can be obtained of the manager.
